What to look for

1. A RAPID® micro-optic security feature. This 6mm wide, blue micro-optic feature displays fluid and highly visible movement behind the national flower, the Victoria Regia Lily.

With only a slight tilt of the banknote, the bands in the RAPID feature move up and down behind the static numerals '1000' as the flower petals shimmer in blue and white.

2. An embedded plastic thread, which is visible when held against the light.

Consequences for counterfeiting currency

The Bank of Guyana would like to remind the public that counterfeiting of currency is a serious criminal offence. The possession of counterfeit notes carries a maximum sentence of fourteen years in jail while production of counterfeit notes carries a life sentence.
